

FIRST HUNDRED DAYS OF THE NEW GOVERNMENT

4 JULY

General Election

5 JULY

Cabinet announcements

New ministers will start to meet with senior civil servants from across each department to set out their priorities. SpAd appointments will also be made including key Downing Street roles such as the Prime Minister's Director of Communications.

6 JULY

First full Cabinet meeting expected

17 JULY

State opening of Parliament and King's Speech for new Parliamentary session

Sets out the government's key priorities, and their likely sequencing. Debate on the King's Speech will take place in the days after with specific days focusing on themes chosen by the Opposition.

9-11 JULY

NATO Summit

Where new PM will stand alongside Biden and other world leaders in Washington.

9 JULY

Parliament's first sitting post-General Election

Some parliamentary business can begin, for example the Government could begin to introduce some bills if it wished, oral questions can begin, and secondary legislation can be considered. Potential early legislation on OBR powers.

18 JULY

European Political Community Summit

PM will host major EU leaders including Emmanuel Macron and Olaf Scholz at Blenheim Palace, Oxfordshire.

LATE JULY/EARLY AUGUST

Parliamentary recess begins

Parliament is likely to break for recess later than the currently scheduled 23rd July.

EARLY SEPTEMBER

Parliament returns from recess

Parliament is likely to return earlier than currently scheduled - potentially on Monday 2nd September.

22-25
SEPTEMBER

Labour Party Conference

MID-SEPTEMBER

First Budget expected for a Labour Government

EARLY SEPTEMBER

Select Committees fully formed

Select Committees will start to be formed fully at this point, with Chairs elected by MPs. Committees announcing their initial inquiries, from September, will offer one of the first opportunities for targeted engagement.

29 SEPTEMBER –
2 OCTOBER

Conservative Party Conference

OCTOBER/NOVEMBER

Comprehensive Spending Review